

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

With power-on detection circuits provided for a plurality of power supply voltages, a main power-on detection signal is maintained at the active state to reset an internal node while at least one of the power-on detection signals is active. In a multi-power semiconductor integrated circuit device, current consumption at the time of power-up is reduced.

5